As a wildland firefighter, I firmly believe that the most important aspect of the job is operational experience, and the best way to gain that experience is by working on a hand crew. I have been active in the MNICS crew program since 2016, and have received numerous operational opportunities only available through hand crews, and have gained invaluable firefighting experience. MNICS has one of the best managed T2IA "throw-together" programs in the country, and I would highly encourage anyone interested in advancing in the operational realm of firefighting, to get involved with the MNICS crew program.

*Ryan Miller, USFS,
2018 Primary CRWB*

The MNICS Interagency T2 IA crew program has been around since 2010, and has since grown into being nationally known and respected for providing well-organized, high functioning and extremely capable hand crews. It's an innovative and great way for individuals to gain experience, obtain training, network and form lasting relationships.

To participate in the program, individuals must be an employee of one of the MNICS partner agencies, and requires a level of commitment from both the employee and their supervisor.
